SARANAC LAKE

WELCOME TO A VILLAGE WHERE THE PAST AND PRESENT MEET

Saranac Lake is a place shaped by stories. From the Indigenous peoples who traveled these waterways long before modern settlement, to the early explorers and the healing legacy that drew visitors here in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, our history continues to influence the community you experience today.

How you spend your time here is entirely up to you. Seek out outdoor adventure, explore local museums and art galleries, treat yourself to a massage and a memorable meal—or enjoy a little of everything. Saranac Lake is known for its welcoming spirit and laid-back mountain hospitality, offering the perfect setting to relax, recharge, and explore.

No matter the season—winter, spring, summer, or fall—there's always a reason to visit and a new way to experience this place. We invite you to discover our history, enjoy the present moment, and imagine what's next.

You may come for a visit—but many find themselves returning again and again, or choosing to call Saranac Lake home.

ART

ART IS EVERYWHERE IN SARANAC LAKE

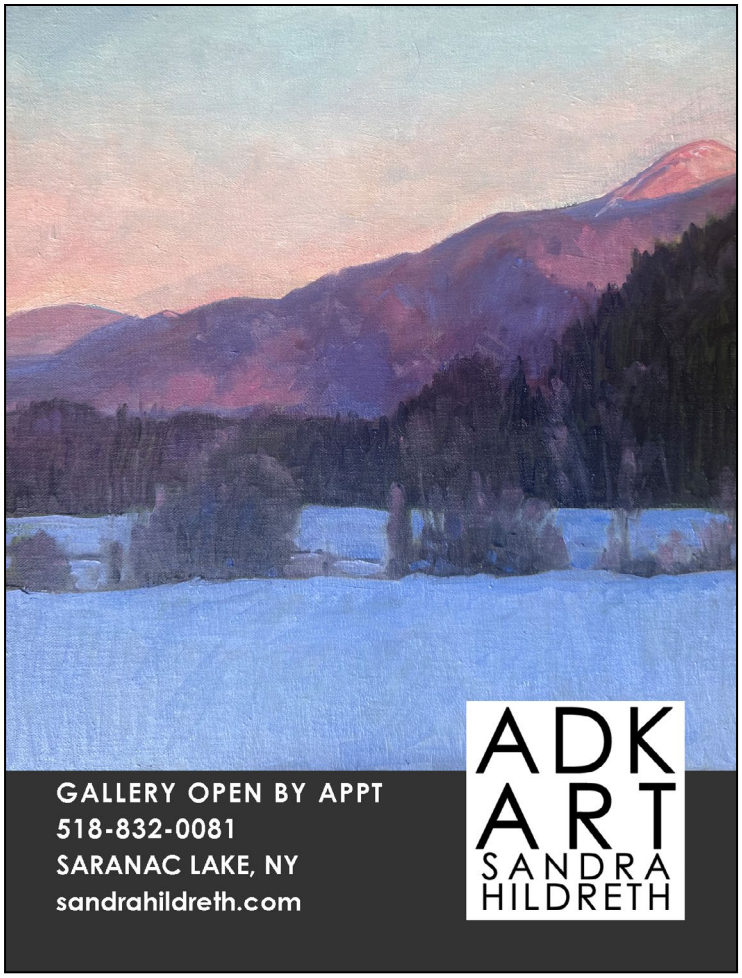

You'll see it as you walk the streets or along the waterfront with bug sculptures and murals, and inside our art galleries. You'll read it in the rainy-day sidewalk poetry or at the Adirondack Center for Writing. You'll watch it at a featured Pendragon Theatre show. You'll hear it from local musicians at our many music venues and in the parks. Saranac Lake is a hub for creators of all kinds.

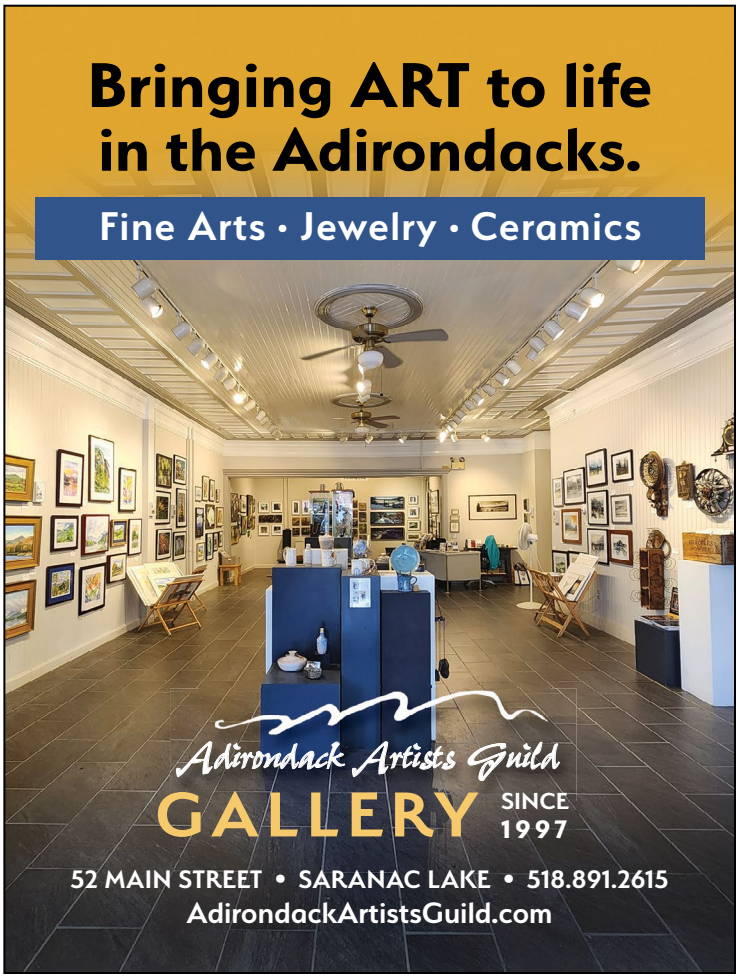

While you are here, visit the cottage of well-known author Robert Louis Stevenson, where he spent the winter of 1887-88 or take a look at the popular Winter Carnival Buttons designed by American cartoonist Gary Trudeau, creator of Doonesbury, who was raised in Saranac Lake.

We are surrounded by art—we celebrate art with music festivals, the Third Thursday ArtWalks, and dancing in our parades. The beauty of the area surrounds us and inspires us, and we are sure you'll feel the inspiration too.

Today, Saranac Lake remains a place to open your mind, refresh your spirit, and renew your body. With talented wellness professionals ready to support your journey, you can reconnect with nature—and with yourself. Step away from the fast pace of everyday life, unplug, and slow down.
